RAIN WATER HARVESTING

Rainwater Harvesting (RWH) is the process of collecting and storing rainwater for future use. It involves capturing rainwater from rooftops, pavements, or other surfaces, and storing it in tanks, ponds, or underground reservoirs. This practice can be used for a variety of purposes, including irrigation, drinking water supply, and even industrial use.

Methods of Rainwater Harvesting: Surface Runoff Harvesting: Collecting rainwater from pavements, roads, and other surfaces. This method is more common in areas with extensive land use.
