DAY 3

A.D.Balasubramanian is a bilingual journalist who has worked in both Tamil and English news media for over 25 years. Started professional journalism from Dinanmani, worked there for years before boarding The New Indian Express' to start the 'English journey and ended up in The Hindu and worked there for 9 years. He left The Hindu as principal correspondent, to join BBC Tamil in Delhi. As a Senior Journalist, he served as the shift editor of the digital desk of BBCTamil.

A Tamil medium student started as a Tamil journalist, learnt, and became an English journalist. He started journalism in the analogue era, dispatching his copies by fax. After almost two decades, he had to manage the Tamil digital operations of the international broadcaster BBC, where one is expected to react to digital trends and steer through handling complex analytical parameters.

He has focused his journalism on the livelihood and environmental issues of communities, politics, history and science. He is now attempting to evolve an alternative space in journalism that focuses on providing reality checks, multiple perspectives in a way that strengthens and boosts credibility of journalism.
